GIRL DRUGGED, THEN
KIDNAPED AND HELD IN DEN THREE WEEKS

NEW YORK, April 14.—Miss Ellen Hurley staggered from a basement apartment in Greenwich village today telling a story involving drugging, kidnapping, imprisonment for three weeks in subterranean quarters, constant threats of being murdered and buried beneath the basement floor and for a climax a fierce free-for-all fight in the midst of which she escaped.

She was sent to a hospital and a few minutes later police arrested Emmanuel Olivares, a Chilean seaman accused of being her kidnaper.

Miss Hurley, domiciled on the Long Island estate of a wealthy New Yorker, told the police she had been lured to the village by thrilling stories she had read of the "night life" there.

In a Spanish cafe she met Olivares and two other men.

After a few drinks, had been served who told herself growing numb. She recalled her senses hours later in a florid street room with Olivares.

When she tried to take her departure, she declared, Olivares threatened her with a pistol, telling her fiercely that if she made any outcry he would slay her and bury her beneath the floor.

She remained in the room for three weeks, Olivares having food brought to her and setting a guard over her on the few occasions he went out.

Early today, she said, two other men, apparently intoxicated, appeared and began an argument with Olivares in Spanish. A three-cornered fight developed. She dashed for the door, was seized by a blow on the head, struggled to her feet and escaped while the fight continued to rage.

DAWSON MINSTRELS

A large audience was out last night and another is expected tonight.

These minstrels have such an enviable reputation that their coming to Dunbar gives the people here an opportunity to enjoy one of the best entertainments that has ever visited the town, while the commendable object for which it is being held should, it is felt, insure a very liberal patronage.

The program will be different from last evening.

Once these individual orders are filled merchandise will be sold under Franco-Belgian control and the proceeds will be used with confiscated money, cash obtained from fines and other sources to pay the expenses of the occupying forces as prior claims, only the surplus going to the Reparations Commission.

Kid Carpenter
And Young Leclair

Vanderbilt fans were delighted with the boxing show put on there last night by the Vanderbilt Athletic Club. Kid Carpenter of New Kensington fought an eight-round draw with Young Leclair of Charleroi.

In the semi-final Jack Smith won by a shade over Pale Hovatt. Both boys are located in Vanderbilt. The next bout also matched two Vanderbilt boys in Pat Washington and Bruno Bonadeo. DE VALERA IS BELIEVED TO HAVE ESCAPED

DUBLIN, April 11.—Irish Free State troops this morning captured Austin Stack, former Republican minister of home affairs, according to the Exchange Telegraph. He was hiding in a ditch in the mountains near Colmole in the district where Liam Lynch was captured recently, the advices state.

LONDON, April 14.—Eamon de Valera has apparently eluded the Free State troops under General Pears who have been searching for him in the Tipperary mountains, says a Dublin dispatch. The whole district was combed yesterday by thousands of soldiers aided by airplane observers.

DUBLIN, April 11.—A bulletin purporting to be a message from Eamon de Valera to the irregular forces was circulated last night in which, after a reference to Liam Lynch, the irregular chief of staff, who died of his wounds after being captured by Free State forces, quotes Mr. de Valera as saying:

"Faced by former comrades who have deserted your side, your task is a hard and sad one. It is to stay where only heroes could venture. You must find yourself across the path of the stampeding nation but it is better to die nobly as your chief did than to live as a slave."

Priests Calmly Admit They Teach Religion in Defense of Soviet.

BAYONETS CLEAR COURT

PART IV.

MOSCOW, March 26, via LONDON. April 5.—A great speech was made by Edward Yevich, the young priest already described. His bright eyes seemed fixed. He described how, as a student, he heard in Petrograd the shots announcing the fall of czarism. He had rejoiced, for czarism had been the enemy of Catholicism in Russia. Young as he was he knew of the persecution of friends who had been sent by hundreds to prison and Siberia because of their faith. But he saw Bolshevism as a worse enemy than czarism.

Quotes Words of Christ.

It realized none of its expectations, it gave none of the liberty it had promised. The people of Petrograd were now weeping and miserable. What were the poor Catholics of Petrograd to do if their priests did not return to them? This naive question excited bitter mirth among the hardened Communists who filled the courts, and the judges asked, not kindly, that he might leave the question of Petrograd alone, and confine himself to the charges against him personally. The prisoner apologized for being carried away, but said he thought he would be allowed to say everything as these were the last words he would say. He ended with Christ's last words on the cross: "Not my will, but Thine, be done."

There was a profound sensation, and some minutes of silence. I noticed tears in the eyes of even the Bolshevik women who had crowded in the court, owing to the fact there was no court in the theaters that night to compare with the thrill of emotion in the real tragedy being enacted at the trial.

Ex-Archbishop Fedoroff said he was in the same position as the archbishop, being the head of the whole Russian Church.

WIDESPREAD PLOT
REVEALED IN RAID
BY SCOTLAND YARD*Taking of Lives and Property
Destruction Among Scheme
Planned.*MANY MARKED FOR DEATH

LONDON, April 14.—Documents revealing plots involving the destruction of life and property in London are reported to have come into possession of Scotland Yard as the result of last night's raids on the residences and resorts of Irish men and women suspected of being Republican supporters.

Among the plans said to have been revealed were plots to attack London lighting and power sources, efforts to release Irish prisoners from London prisons and attempts on lives of police officials.

It is stated the plot had huge ramifications in Great Britain and practically in London and had reached such a stage that a delay of a week by the police might have resulted in the scheme being put into operation.

Among the plans was one for attacking police officers in their homes. A former minister in declared to have been marked. There was a well organized scheme, it is asserted, to raid a London prison either for the purpose of destroying it or rescuing prisoners held there. Irish prisoners also were to be rescued from prison vans.

Preparations had been made for some kind of attack on Old Bailey Court, and the underground power stations had all been marked for destruction.

Milton Writing Lyceum.
Lyceum came to Milton's imagination or at least to paper, in a very perfect form. He writes the first 14 lines, and then writes the flower passage, which was evidently haunting his thought. He sets it down once, crosses it all out, and then begins over again. Line 148 was never inspiration as first written: "the music rose and the garish columbine"; but perhaps it does not express his feeling for the flower, or it did not sound appropriate to have so gaudy a flower about the dead. Ruelin calls 148 "mixed fancy and imagination"; the first version, "every bud that narrows livelier weaves," is also mixed, but perhaps less objectionable than the second. We are familiar with the line: "After the flower passage is in his mind, he takes a fresh sheet, and, commencing a poem once more, writes to the end with very little recasting, except at 58-62, which he thrice revises. Save for these two difficult parts, Milton seems to have written Lyceum with little premeditation, and hence with ease.—Laura B. Lockwood, in "Modern Language Notes."

First "Woman's Rights" Exponent.
Saint Birgitta, the only marked personality of Roman Catholic Sweden (before the Reformation) known to the people, is said to have been the first exponent of "woman's rights" the world has known. She pleaded for "unwed orders" and "nuptial contracts" to insure the frank and practical operation of men and women, monks and nuns, in aiding suffering humanity. Her canonization, however, was due more to the merit of her pilgrimages to Rome and Jerusalem and to her services in bringing about the return of the popes from Avignon to Rome than to her piety and charitable endeavors, or to the example of ardent faith which radiated from her countenance, and by which she was better known in her own country.

Proved His Capacity.
Jefferson Bruce enjoyed a local reputation as an enter of modern times, and on numerous occasions had won success on his capacity and endurance. One day in 1890, he offered to bet that he could not down 30 doughnuts at one sitting. "I don't test my ability on doughnuts," said Jeff. "I'll just take that challenge to the extent of 35." Stakes were put up and the contest was scheduled to take place at Peter's Original Coffee house at 6 p. m. About five o'clock Jeff hunted up his challenger. "Say, you don't want to make that bet 320?" he queried. "Huh! You must think you're not a bunch on this," "What's what?" "I have," rejoined Jeff. "I've just got through making a test."

A Good Name

GOOD NAME is rather to be chosen than great riches. The truth of this proverb has been demonstrated to countless generations of men. It is a happy sign of the advance of Christian principles that a good name is more highly valued and more jealously guarded in business today than ever before. A man who has a good name, whose credit with his associates is sound, may lose all his material possessions—and still come back strong. His good name will be his greatest help in the recovery. A manufacturing concern may lose its plants and machinery through disaster. These can be replaced. But take away its good name, or goodwill, and ruin will be the result.

A good name is the most precious possession of any individual or business institution. Also it is an asset that cannot be bought with money, but must be earned. It takes time to earn a good name, yet it may be lost in a day—through thoughtlessness or dishonesty. Even an innocent mistake sometimes shatters what it has taken years to achieve. That is why men erect every possible safeguard about the good name of a business enterprise.

The H. L. Beach Company has a good name. It started years ago with very definite ideals and with a knowledge of the value of a good name. The ideals have never been violated—the good name followed inevitably.

This company does not offer to the public any investments that are not thoroughly seasoned and safe as to assets and potential profits. The officers and employees of this company invest their own money in every issue of stock they sell to the public.

It is a matter of record that every stock sold by the H. L. Beach Company is today held by the issuing companies at a price at least 25 percent above par. That fact is closely related to the fact that this company enjoys a good name. Our profit on any one issue are not high, but our good name assures a ready market for anything we do offer.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE BORDIER RAIDERS," the feature picture today at this theatre, is an exciting tale of the Rio Grande country when men took the law in their own hands and the fighting man was the man who won. It will give you the thrill of your life. A terrific fight in the cellar of the bandit's house, a chase and pistol duel over the mountains of Arizona Monday and Tuesday, "The Prisoner" starring Herbert Rawlinson will be shown.

THE ROBINSON.

"OMAR THE TENTMAKER," with Guy D'Arcy King, in the leading role, provides splendid entertainment today at this theatre. "Omar the Tentmaker" will be remembered as a highly successful stage play which ran for over four solid years and was seen in every principal city in this country. The film surpasses the play not only in the great latitude possessed by the screen for situations as portrayed by the star and ensemble effects and atmosphere, but also in the quality of the characterizations as portrayed by the star and the supporting players.

NO TRAGEDY IN THEATERS LIKE THAT AT MOSCOW

Under the United Greek Church of Russia, with priests under him and many of the faithful following his line. He tried to argue with the judges on the injustice of the law preventing religious teachings to minors, but the judge stopped him, sternly saying: "It is the law of the republic. It is yours not to comment on it; you must obey it."

Courting Martyrdom.
The younger clergyman in the dock were perhaps too aggressive, if anything. They were courting martyrdom, now that Holy Week had come. But the old archbishop, while equally firm, is shrewd. "Yes, our religion teaches us to pray for our enemies," he says in answer to a question put by Karylenko.

The young priest called Elmont is particularly aggressive. "You do not consider yourself bound to obey the orders of the Soviet government?" Karylenko asks, meaning the orders regarding Catholic churches. "I do not," replies Elmont.

After his church had been closed by the Soviet authorities this young priest continued to say mass to a congregation of 200 or more in a deserted orphanage underneath his private rooms. He calmly admitted this crime against the Bolshevik law, as if he were proud of it.

Questioned about the churches and other sacred vessels he used in these services, he said they were his private property. All the other altar vessels had been seized by the Bolsheviks.

Admit Teaching Religion.
Further questioning brought the calm admission that in defiance of the Soviet law that religion must be taught to nobody under 18 years of age Elmont had made a practice of collecting children in the cold and deserted orphanage and had spoken to them about God.

Similar testimony was given by two other young priests. Father Quasvick and Hodnovitch of the Church of St. Stanislaus and Catherine. At St. Stanislaus's the curate had told the Bolshevik commission who had come to take an inventory: "Clear out of this at once!"

"Citizen Hodnovitch," roared Karylenko, "do you not consider yourself bound to obey the orders of the Soviet government?"
"I am not only a citizen," said the young clergyman, "but also a Roman Catholic priest." Father Hodnovitch also continued to celebrate mass after his church had been closed by a commissar, who had warned him not to celebrate public worship until further orders. About 150 persons were present every time he said mass. And he also had taught children the catechism. He admitted both facts proudly.

Archbishop Federoff and all the other priests made similar admissions: they had all said mass and collected Christian children together to teach them about God, despite the fact that the Soviet government had strictly forbidden it.
Bapineff, a Bolshevik official serving in Basil Island, Petrograd, testified to the trouble he had had with a little Catholic chapel there. The first time he went to close the place the attitude of the crowd was so threatening he judged it prudent to retire. The next time he did the job, but the crowd insulted him, crying, "This is what the Communists call liberty of conscience!"

The proceedings ended amid the most dramatic circumstances. A witness, Bapineff, had testified that the priests had celebrated mass after he had closed their churches and notified them they must not carry on public worship until they had received permission from the Soviet government. Galkin, the presiding judge, asked the prisoners if this was so, and they admitted it was.

"Now you must choose once and for all," yelled a savage-faced ex-priest on the scaffold bench. "Are you going to continue saying mass?"

It was a tense, dramatic moment. Each priest was questioned in turn. Each stood up and declared guilty, firmly and proudly that he would continue to say mass and teach children the catechism, no matter what the consequences to himself.

Savage Questioning.
The judge savagely questioned one young man who had been ordained in 1914 when 23 years old. "Do you teach children their catechism?"
"Yes."

"Do you know that under article 121 of the penal code it is a crime to teach children the catechism, and that religion must be taught to no one before he is 18 years old?"
"Yes, I know that."

"And will you continue to teach the catechism?"

"Yes, with God's help, I will. It is my duty to do so, no matter what the consequences may be. If a father asks me to teach his child the catechism I cannot refuse."

Galkin, himself a renegade priest, growled angrily. He had selected the youngest priest, thinking he would yield and practically abjure his faith but he found himself struggling against a rock.

"Come teach us this," yelled Galkin, "and Soviet Russia teaches the contrary. Which will you choose, Rome or Red Russia?"

In the deep silence that followed the voice of the young priest rang out like the voice of an early Christian in the Pivian amphitheatre: "Rome," he said, with a smile.

And the electric light overhead shone upon a face that might have been the model for the great medieval picture of Saint Sebastian in the national gallery in London.

When the death sentences were pronounced on the archbishop and the four young priests at midnight of Palm Sunday, they looked as men who had obtained their lifelong heart's desire. The archbishop embraced his aged, white bearded lawyer

For Bungalow or Mansion SILVERTONE The Italian Process Stucco

When you build a home you want charming appearance; long durability, with lowest possible upkeep or repair expenses and economy of building material costs.

The forests are going. Indeed they have almost disappeared. Something must take the place of our buildings, which will not burn, which is water-resisting, which never deteriorates in appearance or substance, which is always rich looking, and always will remain artistic.

Stone, or marble is of course the ideal building material from the standpoint of appearance and long life. SILVERTONE gives you similar appearance and long life with very much less cost.

The onslaught of winter's storms, the beating heat of summer's sun cannot break the resisting force of SILVERTONE—the Italian Process Stucco.

This building material in actual tests has proven itself to be three times as hard as any other form of stucco.

When you build today with SILVERTONE you build for all time. SILVERTONE withstands the actions of the elements as no other exterior building material can—and gives you a home of lasting beauty at a cost as low as wood construction; also fireproof, coldproof, sanitary and artistic.

What is Silvertone

Silvertone is a scientifically compounded, machine mixed Portland cement, EXTERIOR STUCCO, put up in bags ready to use with the addition of water only.

All materials used in the manufacture of "Silvertone" are of the highest grade and are all tested. Manufactured under the Italian process it becomes three times as strong as ordinary cement.

A good example of a Silvertone Stucco house is the David Nixon bungalow on Race street.

High School Boys Have Opportunity to Display Spirit; Needed in Field

Coach Wine Does Not Have Enough Candidates Out for Track Team.

OTHER POSITIONS OPEN

Connellsville High School boys now have an opportunity to show they possess the real spirit. The school is putting a team in the field most of county schools, to be held at Dawson Driving Park on May 12, and every boy in the institution has a chance to win a berth.

On Thursday evening, with the best weather, there were only 15 boys on the grounds and practically all these were runners, both distance runners and sprinters. There should be 100 boys out of such a student body as is represented in the High School.

It is up to the athletes to remember that in other schools, especially Uniontown, the student body will give its best to have its entrance defeat the Connellsville contestants and school spirit and pride. If nothing else, should result in a strong turnout.

It is a little less than a month until the meet, one of a wonderful for can be done in that time but Coach Wine needs the material. There are a number of boys who have shown their athletic prowess on the gridiron and basketball floor who have not reported and there are many others who did not go in for either of the student games that now have no excuse for remaining from the training field.

There are some good running prospects reporting for practice and routine work, consisting of limbering up of muscles and building up the "wind" have been the chief tasks to date. The meet consists of many events, however, and no one set of runners can enter all foot contests. This makes a large class of fast boys necessary.

It is Connellsville's first year in a county field meet and the showing of the school depends entirely on its student body. The boys from the freshmen to the senior classes have the power in their hands to determine whether or not the Orange and Black standard shall be lowered and dragged in the dust.

COURIER WILL COVER ALL BASEBALL GAMES, WHETHER BIG OR SMALL

The Courier will give publicity to every baseball game played in this vicinity this summer. If those in charge of the contests will cooperate with the sporting editor, the sporting column is open to any event of interest and with the organization of many ball clubs in and about the city the managers of those teams are invited to come to The Courier office and secure score sheets.

There is no charge for the service and the wide circulation of The Courier makes it desirable that the news be printed in its sporting columns.

LION TAMERS DEFEAT ST. VINCENT IN LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

The "Lion Tamers" Club, composed of former High School stars, last night defeated the St. Vincent club of Leisensburg by a score of 45-22. The Lions took the lead at the beginning of the second period and increased it steadily. The team had not played for some time and the lay-off resulted in extra efforts on the part of the club to show speed.

The Green team held the lead by a two-point margin at the close of the first quarter while the Lion Tamers were getting the range of the basket. The victors started to shoot accurately and before the first half ended had advanced a size margin. The score was 20-13.

LeRue, who did not get to play all the game, had the highest score from the floor, getting six field goals. He got one in the first half substituting for Nied and then he took Illig's place in the second half, scored five in a row.

The line-up:
Lion Tamers—45. St. Vincent—22.
McCormick F. Alexander
Nied F. J. Rusinko
Lowrey G. A. Rusinko
Welsh G. Illig
Illig G. Pritchard
Substitutions—LeRue for Nied,
Nied for Lowrey, Bradley for Pritchard,
Larue for Illig.
Field goals—LeRue 6, McCormick
2, Lowrey 3, J. Rusinko 3, Nied 2,
Welsh 2, Alexander
Foul goals—McCormick, 13 out of 20; A. Rusinko, 14 out of 23.
Referee—Wall.

Tennis Association Will Meet Monday

The Connellsville Tennis Association members will meet again Monday night. This session will be in the office of Dr. Louis Shrawlow. At the meeting the club will reorganize and elect officers for the coming year.

In addition, plans for the summer's activities will be laid and there will be a discussion of plans for the annual banquet.

It is the hope of the association that the grounds will be in shape for play before the end of this month or at least the first week of May.

False Report Regarding Prices Denied

A false report has been circulated throughout the country alleging that the list price of Oldsmobiles had been increased. Friday morning General Sales Manager C. H. Ponsley of the Olds Motor Works issued the following statement:

"Contrary to rumors the Olds Motor Works has not increased the price of Oldsmobiles. There is no doubt of the fact that the bottom price level of automobiles has been reached. The raw material market is today higher than during any time for some months back. Besides the increased cost of raw materials, wages to labor have increased considerably. It is natural that these factors shall have a tendency to increase the price of finished products. Automobile makers have reduced their manufacturing expenses as much as possible through more efficiency and the absorbing of overhead by spreading it over increased production. In spite of these facts we are still selling the Oldsmobile 'Four' touring for $275, the 'Eight' touring for $325, and other body types at proportionate prices."
